With Fabric & Thread: More Than 20 Inspired Quilting and ... Plain Weave is a very simple weave, and is used to form Percale fabric (plain weave fabric with a thread count of 200 or more). Fabric made using this technique is formed by passing weft (horizontal) threads over and under warp (vertical) threads to form a tightly-woven material. This dense weave of threads creates a fabric that is light and airy yet too thick for dust mites to easily infiltrate the fabric. Our 200, 400 and 1000 TC bed linen is made from plain weave fabric.

Thread count is extremely important when it comes to choosing bed linen. It refers to the number of horizontal and vertical threads per square inch. Therefore, the higher the thread count, the better wear-tear and softer the sheet. While a high thread count is an important factor, the cotton type used is more significant.
